

BETHLEHEM THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Prospectus

Biblical Education for a Faithful Life and Effective Ministry

Bethlehem Theological Seminary exists to make sound biblical and theological education accessible to those who desire to know God's Word more deeply, grow in Christian maturity, and prepare themselves for faithful service to Christ and His Church.

Our vision is simple yet far-reaching: to help make biblical and theological education accessible to Christians in Pakistan and beyond, particularly for those who may not have access to a traditional seminary education.

Through systematic study of Scripture, theological instruction, Christian education, discipleship, and ministry preparation, Bethlehem Theological Seminary seeks to equip students not merely with information, but with a deeper understanding of God's Word and a stronger foundation for Christian life and service.

1. About Bethlehem Theological Seminary

Bethlehem Theological Seminary is a Christian theological education ministry established with the conviction that faithful ministry requires a strong foundation in the Word of God.

Many Christians who desire theological education face significant barriers. Traditional seminaries may require relocation, substantial financial resources, transportation, or the ability to attend classes at fixed times and locations. For many students, pastors, ministry workers, families, and others who desire deeper biblical education, these requirements can make formal theological study difficult or impossible.

Bethlehem Theological Seminary seeks to address this need by providing an accessible model of biblical and theological education.

The Seminary's educational approach is designed to make serious study of Scripture possible while allowing students to remain within their existing communities, responsibilities, ministries, and family circumstances.

Our present model makes extensive use of WhatsApp-based theological education, allowing students to receive lessons and participate in their studies through a platform that is widely accessible in Pakistan.

This approach is not intended to reduce the seriousness of theological education. Rather, it seeks to remove unnecessary barriers so that students who genuinely desire to study God's Word can have an opportunity to do so.

2. Our Vision

Our long-term vision is to develop a strong, accessible, and biblically grounded theological education ministry that can serve students throughout Pakistan and, ultimately, reach learners beyond Pakistan as well.

We envision theological education that is:

- Biblical in its foundation
- Christ-centered in its purpose
- Theologically responsible in its teaching
- Accessible to ordinary believers
- Practical for Christian ministry
- Systematic in its study of Scripture
- Relevant to the needs of the local Church
- Committed to the spiritual and intellectual formation of students

Our desire is to see men and women become better equipped to understand Scripture, teach faithfully, serve effectively, disciple others, and contribute meaningfully to the life and mission of the Church.

3. Our Mission

The mission of Bethlehem Theological Seminary is to provide accessible biblical and theological education through the systematic study of God's Word, theological instruction, Christian education, discipleship, and ministry preparation.

We seek to help students develop:

A deeper knowledge of Scripture, a clearer understanding of Christian doctrine, a stronger Christian character, and a greater readiness for faithful service.

The Seminary is committed to the conviction that theological education should ultimately lead to faithful Christian living and faithful Christian ministry.

Education is not an end in itself. The goal is transformation, maturity, faithfulness, and service.

4. Why Bethlehem Theological Seminary?

Bethlehem Theological Seminary has been developed around several important convictions.

Accessible Education

Theological education should not be limited only to those who can relocate to a seminary campus or afford traditional residential education.

Our model seeks to make theological study accessible to students who may have work, family, ministry, financial, geographical, or other responsibilities.

Scripture-Centered Learning

The Bible is at the heart of our educational program.

Rather than treating Scripture as merely one subject among many, the curriculum is designed around the systematic study and understanding of the biblical text.

Book-by-Book Study

A central feature of the Seminary's educational philosophy is the systematic study of the Bible book by book.

Students are introduced to Scripture progressively, allowing them to develop a broader understanding of the biblical narrative, its theological themes, historical context, literary structure, and message.

A Strong Biblical Foundation

The Seminary's curriculum begins with the foundational books of the Bible.

Particular attention is given to the Pentateuch, providing students with a foundational understanding of creation, humanity, covenant, sin, redemption, God's promises, God's relationship with His people, and the development of the biblical story.

Practical Ministry Preparation

The purpose of theological education is not merely academic achievement.

Students should be better prepared to teach, preach, disciple, lead, counsel, serve, and live faithfully within the Church and the wider Christian community.

5. Educational Philosophy

Bethlehem Theological Seminary believes that theological education should unite knowledge, faith, character, and ministry.

A student may acquire theological information without becoming a mature Christian servant. For this reason, the Seminary seeks to encourage students to engage Scripture not simply as an academic subject, but as God's revealed Word that calls the believer to faith and obedience.

Our educational philosophy therefore seeks to cultivate four interconnected areas:

Biblical Knowledge

Students should develop a substantial and coherent understanding of the Bible and its central teachings.

Theological Understanding

Students should learn to understand Christian doctrine carefully and responsibly in light of Scripture.

Christian Formation

Theological knowledge should contribute to spiritual maturity, Christian character, humility, faithfulness, and obedience.

Ministry Preparation

Students should be increasingly equipped to use what they have learned in service to Christ and His Church.

6. Curriculum Structure

The curriculum of Bethlehem Theological Seminary is designed around the systematic study of the Bible.

The Seminary follows a book-by-book approach to biblical education, beginning with the foundational material of the Pentateuch and progressing through the biblical canon as the curriculum develops.

This approach enables students to study individual biblical books while also understanding how each book contributes to the larger story of Scripture.

Students are encouraged to consider:

- The historical setting of each biblical book
- Its authorship and literary character where relevant
- Its major themes
- Its theological message
- Its relationship to the wider biblical narrative
- Its significance for God's people
- Its relationship to the person and work of Christ
- Its implications for Christian faith and practice
- Its significance for Christian ministry

The curriculum will continue to develop as additional biblical books and theological subjects are incorporated into the Seminary's program.

7. Current Course: Genesis

The present curriculum includes a structured course on the Book of Genesis, consisting of 14 lessons.

Genesis provides an essential foundation for the study of Scripture because it introduces many of the major themes that shape the rest of the biblical narrative.

Through the study of Genesis, students encounter foundational biblical teaching concerning:

- Creation

- Humanity
- The image of God
- Sin and the Fall
- Judgment
- God's grace
- The Flood
- The nations
- God's covenant purposes
- Abraham
- Isaac
- Jacob
- Joseph
- God's promises
- God's providence
- The development of God's redemptive purposes

The study of Genesis therefore serves not simply as an isolated study of one biblical book, but as an important foundation for understanding the books and theological themes that follow.

8. The Importance of Studying the Bible Systematically

Bethlehem Theological Seminary places strong emphasis on systematic biblical study because Christians need more than isolated Bible verses or disconnected lessons.

A systematic approach allows students to see the relationship between different passages, books, doctrines, historical events, and theological themes.

It helps students move from simply asking:

“What does this verse say?”

to asking broader and more responsible questions:

“What does this passage mean in its context?”

“What does this biblical book teach?”

“How does this teaching relate to the rest of Scripture?”

“What does this reveal about God, humanity, sin, salvation, covenant, and God's purposes?”

“How should this truth shape Christian faith and life?”

This method is intended to help students develop a mature and coherent understanding of Scripture.

9. Method of Study

Bethlehem Theological Seminary currently uses an accessible distance-learning model, with WhatsApp serving as an important platform for communication and the distribution of educational material.

This model has been developed with the realities of students in Pakistan in mind.

Students may be able to study without leaving their communities or interrupting their existing responsibilities.

The educational process is designed to facilitate:

- Distribution of lessons
- Communication with students
- Study of assigned material
- Questions and discussion
- Academic interaction
- Ongoing learning and follow-up

As the Seminary develops, the educational model may expand to incorporate additional digital resources and technologies.

The Seminary's long-term vision includes the possibility of developing a dedicated mobile application to make biblical and theological education even more accessible, organized, and scalable.

10. Who Is Bethlehem Theological Seminary For?

Bethlehem Theological Seminary is intended for individuals who desire serious biblical and theological education and who are committed to growing in their understanding of God's Word.

The Seminary may be particularly valuable for:

- Pastors
- Church leaders
- Ministry workers
- Sunday school teachers
- Christian educators
- Bible teachers

- Youth workers
- Discipleship leaders
- Christians seeking deeper biblical understanding
- Individuals preparing for Christian ministry
- Believers who have not had access to traditional theological education

The Seminary seeks to serve students from different circumstances and backgrounds while maintaining a clear commitment to Christian and biblical education.

11. Education for Ministry and the Church

The Seminary exists within the broader life and mission of the Church.

Theological education should strengthen the Church rather than separate students from it.

For this reason, students are encouraged to apply their learning within their churches, families, ministries, and communities.

A student who understands Scripture more clearly should also become better prepared to communicate Scripture faithfully.

A student who understands Christian doctrine more deeply should also become better equipped to explain and defend the Christian faith responsibly.

A student who studies God's Word seriously should increasingly desire to live according to that Word.

The ultimate objective is therefore not simply to produce knowledgeable students, but faithful servants of Christ.

12. Admission and Eligibility

Bethlehem Theological Seminary welcomes individuals who have a genuine desire to study the Bible and Christian theology and who are willing to undertake serious and disciplined study.

Because the Seminary is developing an accessible model of theological education, its admission process is intended to remain practical and appropriate to the educational level and purpose of each program.

Current Admission Requirements

The Seminary's final official admission requirements should be confirmed by the Seminary administration before publication.

At minimum, prospective students should be prepared to:

- Demonstrate a genuine interest in biblical and theological study
- Commit themselves to regular study

- Participate responsibly in the assigned educational process
- Complete assigned lessons and coursework
- Maintain respectful and appropriate communication
- Follow the Seminary's academic and conduct expectations

Formal academic prerequisites, age requirements, documentation requirements, and any program-specific eligibility criteria should be inserted here after official confirmation by the Seminary administration.

The Seminary does not wish to create unnecessary barriers to theological education, but it also recognizes that serious study requires commitment, discipline, and responsibility.

13. Application and Enrollment

Prospective students who wish to study at Bethlehem Theological Seminary should follow the Seminary's official enrollment procedure.

The current enrollment process is designed around the Seminary's accessible distance-learning model.

General Enrollment Process

1. Express Your Interest

Prospective students contact the Seminary through the officially designated communication channel.

2. Provide Required Information

Applicants provide the personal and educational information requested by the Seminary.

3. Application Review

The Seminary reviews the applicant's information in accordance with its admission requirements.

4. Enrollment Confirmation

Approved students receive confirmation and instructions concerning the commencement of their studies.

5. Course Orientation

Students receive information regarding the study process, lessons, communication procedures, and expectations.

6. Begin the Course

Students begin their assigned studies according to the Seminary's current academic schedule.

The Seminary's official application form, contact information, and final enrollment procedure should be published here once formally approved by the administration.

14. Duration of Study

The duration of study may vary according to the specific course or program and the Seminary's academic structure.

The Seminary is currently developing its curriculum progressively, beginning with individual structured courses and expanding its overall program of biblical and theological education.

The current Genesis course consists of 14 lessons.

The official duration of complete programs, including the number of courses, academic terms, or levels required for completion, should be confirmed and published by the Seminary administration when the relevant program structure has been formally established.

This approach allows the Seminary to develop its curriculum carefully rather than publishing academic structures that have not yet been officially finalized.

15. Fees and Financial Accessibility

One of the important purposes of Bethlehem Theological Seminary is to make theological education more accessible.

The Seminary recognizes that financial limitations can prevent many sincere students from receiving theological education.

Where possible, the Seminary seeks to keep the cost of education within the reach of students in Pakistan.

Official Fees

Current official tuition and enrollment fees should be inserted here after confirmation by the Seminary administration.

No fee amount should be published as official until it has been formally verified.

Where scholarships, financial assistance, or other forms of support are available, the Seminary may publish the relevant eligibility requirements and application procedure separately.

16. Student Responsibilities

Every student admitted to Bethlehem Theological Seminary is expected to approach theological education with seriousness and integrity.

Students are expected to:

- Study assigned lessons carefully
- Complete required coursework

- Participate consistently in the educational process
- Ask questions respectfully and responsibly
- Engage Scripture thoughtfully
- Respect teachers, fellow students, churches, and ministry leaders
- Avoid academic dishonesty
- Submit their own work
- Maintain appropriate communication
- Use Seminary materials responsibly
- Represent the Seminary with Christian character

The Seminary expects students to understand that theological education carries both academic and spiritual responsibility.

17. Academic Integrity

Bethlehem Theological Seminary expects honesty and integrity in all academic work.

Students should not present another person's work as their own, submit copied assignments, misrepresent their academic performance, or engage in other forms of academic dishonesty.

Theological education requires intellectual honesty.

Students are encouraged to read carefully, think critically, ask questions, examine Scripture in context, and acknowledge sources appropriately when using the work of other authors.

The purpose of academic work is not merely to complete an assignment, but to develop the student's own ability to understand, communicate, and apply biblical and theological truth responsibly.

18. Christian Conduct

Students are expected to conduct themselves in a manner consistent with Christian principles and with the Seminary's educational and ministry purposes.

Respect, honesty, humility, responsibility, and appropriate communication are expected in all Seminary interactions.

The Seminary recognizes that students come from different circumstances and backgrounds. Nevertheless, participation in Seminary education carries a responsibility to maintain an environment characterized by mutual respect and seriousness of purpose.

19. Use of Seminary Materials

Course materials, lessons, lectures, written resources, and other educational content provided by Bethlehem Theological Seminary are intended for legitimate educational use.

Students should not reproduce, sell, redistribute, modify, or publicly republish Seminary materials without appropriate authorization.

Where educational resources are provided freely or at reduced cost, this generosity should not be interpreted as permission to commercially exploit or redistribute those materials.

The Seminary may establish additional policies concerning copyright, publication, recording, distribution, and use of educational materials as its programs develop.

20. Assessment and Academic Progress

Assessment methods may vary according to the course and program.

As the Seminary's curriculum develops, assessment may include:

- Lesson assignments
- Written responses
- Questions and discussions
- Reading requirements
- Course examinations
- Other forms of academic evaluation

The purpose of assessment is to help students demonstrate their understanding of the material and to encourage disciplined study.

Official grading policies, examination requirements, passing standards, and certification requirements should be published once formally established by the Seminary administration.

21. Certificates and Completion

Where a course or program includes a certificate or other formal recognition of completion, students will be required to satisfy the relevant academic requirements established by the Seminary.

The Seminary's official certificate structure, terminology, eligibility requirements, and conditions for completion should be confirmed before publication.

The Seminary is committed to ensuring that any academic recognition it provides accurately reflects the level and nature of study completed.

22. A Growing Curriculum

Bethlehem Theological Seminary is not designed as a static educational project.

Its curriculum is intended to grow progressively.

Beginning with the systematic study of Scripture, the Seminary seeks to develop an increasingly comprehensive program of biblical and theological education.

As the curriculum expands, students may have opportunities to study additional biblical books and theological subjects.

Potential areas of future development may include broader biblical studies, theology, Christian history, ministry, discipleship, Christian education, and other areas necessary for faithful Christian service.

Any future programs or courses will be announced officially by the Seminary once they have been developed and approved.

23. The Pentateuch as a Foundation

The Seminary places particular importance on the Pentateuch because these foundational books establish many of the concepts that are essential for understanding the rest of Scripture.

The study of Genesis and the books that follow provides students with a foundation for understanding:

- Creation
- Humanity
- Sin
- Covenant
- Promise
- Redemption
- Worship
- Law
- God's holiness
- God's relationship with His people
- The formation of Israel
- God's continuing redemptive purposes

A student who develops a strong foundation in these texts is better prepared to understand the historical books, wisdom literature, prophets, Gospels, Epistles, and the wider biblical narrative.

24. Beyond Information: Formation

Bethlehem Theological Seminary believes that theological education should shape the whole person.

The goal is not simply to help students remember theological definitions.

The goal is to help them understand God's Word so deeply that it informs their thinking, strengthens their faith, shapes their character, and influences their ministry.

For this reason, students are encouraged to approach their studies prayerfully and thoughtfully.

The Seminary seeks to cultivate learners who do not merely know about Scripture, but who increasingly learn to live under the authority of Scripture.

25. Serving Pakistan Through Theological Education

Pakistan presents unique opportunities and challenges for Christian education and ministry.

Accessible theological education can play an important role in strengthening Christian communities by helping pastors, teachers, ministry workers, and believers develop a deeper understanding of Scripture.

Bethlehem Theological Seminary seeks to contribute to this need by developing an educational model suited to the realities of the Pakistani context.

By using accessible digital communication and systematic biblical education, the Seminary seeks to help remove barriers that can prevent sincere students from pursuing theological study.

The vision is not simply to educate individuals, but to strengthen families, churches, ministries, teachers, and future Christian leaders through the faithful teaching of God's Word.

26. A Vision for the Future

The long-term vision of Bethlehem Theological Seminary extends beyond its present educational model.

The Seminary seeks to build a sustainable theological education platform that can serve an increasing number of students.

One part of this long-term vision is the development of a dedicated mobile application through which students could access lessons, educational resources, communication tools, and other Seminary materials in a more organized and accessible environment.

Such development would allow the Seminary to expand its reach while maintaining its commitment to systematic biblical and theological education.

The vision is ambitious, but its foundation remains simple:

Make faithful biblical education accessible to those who desire to learn, grow, and serve.

27. What Students Can Expect

Students joining Bethlehem Theological Seminary should expect an educational journey that requires commitment.

They should expect to read, study, think, ask questions, complete assignments, and engage seriously with the biblical text.

They should also expect to encounter difficult questions.

Theological study is not always easy. Scripture contains profound truths, complex historical settings, theological questions, and passages that require careful interpretation.

The Seminary seeks to encourage students not to avoid difficult questions, but to approach them with humility, careful study, respect for Scripture, and responsible theological reasoning.

28. What the Seminary Expects From Its Students

Bethlehem Theological Seminary seeks students who are willing to take their education seriously.

Students should understand that enrollment is not simply registration for a course. It is a commitment to disciplined learning.

We therefore encourage every prospective student to consider carefully:

- Am I willing to study regularly?
- Am I willing to complete assigned work?
- Am I willing to ask questions?
- Am I willing to learn from correction?
- Am I willing to examine my assumptions in light of Scripture?
- Am I willing to grow in both knowledge and character?
- Am I willing to use what I learn for the good of others and the Church?

A serious answer to these questions is an important part of preparing for theological education.

29. Our Commitment to Students

Bethlehem Theological Seminary seeks to provide students with an educational environment in which they can pursue biblical learning with seriousness and purpose.

We are committed to:

- Biblical faithfulness
- Responsible theological education
- Accessible learning

- Systematic study
- Christian discipleship
- Ministry preparation
- Academic integrity
- Responsible communication
- Continued development of educational resources

As the Seminary grows, these commitments will remain central to its identity.

30. Frequently Asked Questions

Is Bethlehem Theological Seminary a traditional residential seminary?

No. The Seminary has been developed around an accessible distance-learning model, currently making significant use of WhatsApp for educational communication and course delivery.

Can someone study without relocating?

The Seminary's current model is designed specifically to make study possible without requiring students to relocate to a traditional seminary campus.

What is currently being studied?

The current curriculum includes a structured 14-lesson course in Genesis, within the Seminary's broader book-by-book approach to biblical study.

Will more biblical books be taught?

Yes. The Seminary's curriculum is intended to develop progressively, with the long-term objective of providing systematic study across the biblical canon and broader theological education.

Who can apply?

The Seminary is intended for individuals who desire serious biblical and theological education. Final admission requirements should be confirmed according to the Seminary's official admission policy.

How much does the Seminary cost?

The official fee structure should be confirmed by the Seminary administration before publication.

How long does the program take?

The duration depends on the course or program. The current Genesis course contains 14 lessons. Official program durations should be confirmed as the Seminary's complete academic structure is finalized.

Is a certificate provided?

Any certificate or formal recognition is subject to the Seminary's official academic requirements and policies.

How do I enroll?

Prospective students should contact the Seminary through its official communication channel and follow the current enrollment procedure.

31. Important Notice Regarding Official Information

Bethlehem Theological Seminary is committed to accuracy and transparency.

Because the Seminary's educational program is developing progressively, certain administrative details—including final program structures, admission requirements, fees, academic duration, certification, and specific enrollment procedures—should only be published after official confirmation by the Seminary administration.

No prospective student should rely on unofficial information regarding admission, fees, certification, or academic status.

The Seminary reserves the right to update its curriculum, policies, procedures, schedules, and educational offerings as the ministry develops.

The latest information published through the Seminary's official communication channels should be considered authoritative.

32. An Invitation to Study God's Word

Theological education begins with a desire to know.

To know Scripture.

To know the truth.

To understand the faith that we confess.

To recognize the story of God's work throughout Scripture.

And ultimately, to know Christ more faithfully and serve Him more effectively.

Bethlehem Theological Seminary exists for those who desire to take that journey seriously.

Whether you are already serving in a church, teaching others, preparing for ministry, or simply longing to understand the Bible more deeply, we invite you to consider the opportunity to study God's Word in a structured and disciplined way.

You do not need to begin with perfect knowledge.

You begin with a willingness to learn.

You do not need to know every answer.

You begin with a willingness to study.

You do not need to have access to a traditional seminary campus.

You begin where you are.

Our prayer is that through faithful study of Scripture, sound theological education, Christian discipleship, and practical preparation for ministry, students will grow in knowledge, maturity, faithfulness, and service.

33. Our Hope

Our hope is to see a generation of Christians in Pakistan who are deeply rooted in Scripture, carefully grounded in Christian truth, equipped for ministry, and prepared to serve the Church faithfully.

We believe that accessible theological education can become a means of strengthening individuals, families, churches, and ministries.

We therefore continue this work with a long-term vision:

to make biblical and theological education accessible, systematic, faithful, and useful for the strengthening of Christ's Church.

34. Welcome to Bethlehem Theological Seminary

If you desire to study God's Word seriously, grow in your understanding of Christian truth, and prepare yourself for faithful service, Bethlehem Theological Seminary welcomes your interest.

This is an invitation to learn.

An invitation to grow.

An invitation to study Scripture carefully.

And an invitation to prepare for a life of faithful Christian service.

Bethlehem Theological Seminary

Biblical Education. Theological Formation. Faithful Service.

Official Admission Requirements

Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary welcomes applicants who have a genuine desire to study the Bible and Christian theology and who are prepared to undertake serious and disciplined theological study.

As part of the admission process, applicants are required to provide accurate and complete personal, educational, and ministry information. The application includes the applicant's full name, father's name, date of birth, nationality, gender, marital status, address, and contact information.

Applicants are also asked to provide information about their educational background, including their last educational institution and any previous theological degree, certificate, or seminary education.

The application process also asks applicants to provide information concerning their Christian faith, including when and how they accepted Jesus Christ, their current church, their role in the church, and, where applicable, a recommendation from their pastor or church leader.

Applicants are required to explain why they wish to join Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary and to describe their future vision. These responses help the Seminary understand the applicant's spiritual commitment, educational purpose, and vision for future Christian service.

Applicants must also confirm that the information provided in their application is accurate and that they agree to abide by the rules and regulations of Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary.

Where applicable, applicants may also provide a recommendation from a pastor or church leader confirming their Christian commitment and recommending them for theological study at the Seminary.

Official Program Duration

The duration of study depends on the course or program offered by Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary.

The Seminary's current biblical curriculum includes a structured 14-lesson course on the Book of Genesis, forming part of its broader approach to systematic, book-by-book study of Scripture.

As the Seminary continues to develop its curriculum, additional biblical books and theological courses may be introduced. The duration and structure of each course or program will be communicated to students as the relevant program is established.

Official Tuition and Fees

Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary provides its theological education free of charge.

There are no tuition fees or Seminary study fees for students enrolled in the Seminary's theological education program.

The Seminary's commitment to free theological education reflects its desire to make biblical and theological study accessible to students who may otherwise be unable to afford traditional theological education.

No student should be prevented from pursuing theological education simply because of financial limitations.

Official Application and Enrollment Procedure

Prospective students begin the admission process by completing the official Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary Admission Application Form.

Applicants are required to provide accurate and complete information concerning their personal background, education, previous theological studies, Christian faith, current church involvement, ministry role, motivation for joining the Seminary, and future vision.

Where applicable, applicants may also provide a recommendation from their pastor or church leader.

After submitting the application, the Seminary reviews the information provided as part of its admission process. Applicants who are accepted will receive further information and guidance regarding enrollment, the study process, and the commencement of their theological education.

Applicants are responsible for ensuring that all information submitted in the application is truthful and accurate.

Official Certification Policy

Where a course or program includes formal certification, students must fulfill the academic and other requirements established by Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary.

Any certificate or formal recognition issued by the Seminary will correspond to the course or program successfully completed by the student and will be subject to the Seminary's applicable academic policies.

Official Student Policies

Students of Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary are expected to approach their theological education with seriousness, integrity, discipline, and Christian responsibility.

Students are expected to:

- Provide accurate and truthful information to the Seminary.
- Complete their assigned lessons and coursework responsibly.
- Participate faithfully in the educational process.
- Maintain respectful and appropriate communication with Seminary leadership, teachers, and fellow students.
- Maintain academic integrity and submit their own work.
- Respect the rules and regulations of Bethlehem Biblical Theological Seminary.
- Use Seminary educational materials responsibly.
- Conduct themselves in a manner consistent with the Christian and educational purposes of the Seminary.
- Remain committed to their theological studies and the purpose for which they have enrolled.

Students are also encouraged to remain actively involved in the life and ministry of their local church and to use their theological education for the strengthening of the Church and the service of Christ.

Final Word to Prospective Students

A theological education is more than a qualification. It is an investment in understanding, faithfulness, character, and service.

The work of studying Scripture requires patience. It requires discipline. It requires humility. But it is a journey that can profoundly shape the way a person understands God, His Word, His Church, and the calling to Christian service.

Bethlehem Theological Seminary exists to make that journey more accessible.

Study the Word. Understand the faith. Grow in truth. Serve faithfully.
